You're interested in how to dramatically improve your performance and value creation

WHO SHOULD TAKE THIS COURSE?

The average knowledge worker is typically overworked, time-pressed and under trained, working with a complexity level of tasks that is often above his/her competency level, which increasingly leads to emotional and cognitive stress, and project failure.

So, if you are a business professional (leader, senior specialists or talent) interested in lifting your performance to the next level, the program can provide you with a set of transferable skills, mindset and behaviours that are relevant for virtually any professional in the future.

The program does not assume any particular educational background. A key element of the course will be your current activities or an individual project where you develop a plan for how to apply your new toolbox and skillset in your own organization, or in a business context of your choice.

“Now I realise how we can increase our performance by working to optimise the entire system, not sales or operations individually”

“I wanted to take this course to get a broad and extensive toolbox... and wauw you have delivered”

“Working actively with allocating my time, I'm now already up to 70% of my time being value adding.”

“Fundamentals of Excellence has given us a common language to address operational and wicked problems”
